VISIT CLAYMILLS VICTORIAN PUMPING STATION

Institution of MECHANICAL ENGINEERS

The Claymills Pumping Engines Trust will host a visit to tour the nineteenth century Claymills Pumping Station complex including all buildings, engines and equipment. The main pumping plant consists of four Woolf compound, rotative, beam pumping engines. These are arranged in mirror image pairs in two separate engine houses with a central boiler house and chimney. The boiler house has five boilers and also supplied steam to over thirty auxiliary engines. The IMechE awarded an Engineering Heritage Award to the Trust in 2010.

The visit will include a short talk and a tour.

Suitable footwear required (i.e. no high heels or open shoes such as sandals).
